DID YOU KNOW?

Grenada is called the Island of Spice because it produces more spices per square mile than any other country in the world, especially nutmeg, which is featured on the national flag. More than 20 percent of the island is protected as a forest reserve, supporting its rich biodiversity.

"Wave Jumper" by Nicola Cornwell

"When you chop down a tree, you lose the shade."

A Caribbean proverb warning not to get rid of a valuable resource or you will inevitably suffer the loss of the comfort they provided.
